WASHINGTON, March 23, 1866.

THE LOAN BILL PASSED IN THE HOUSE. THE LOAN SILL PASSED IN THE HOUSE.

The Loan bill passed the House this afternoon by an unexpectedly large majority. Although the bill was recommitted to the Ways and Means Committee last Friday without instructions, the committee regarded the commitment as instructions and compromised with the opponents of the bill by restricting the power of the Secretary in accordance with their clamors. All these opponents professed the greatest condence in the wisdom and integrity of the able head of the Treasury Debugger, and would not for the world be counted among those the opponents and would not for the world be counted among those the opponents and would not for the world be counted among those they would and spouted steadily against these professions till the compremise was agreed upon. Under the provisions of the new bill the Secretary cannot retire more than ten milhous in greenback within the first six months after its passage and not more than tour millions per month thereafter; so be if Mr. McCulloch uses all the power he has, and is not thereof again in the meant me, he may retire the greenback circulation in nine years or thereabouts. The opponents account in the recess of Congress, when they could shorten his rope again if necessary. A new section of the bill provides that he shell make a recent of the constitution and the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides that he shell make a recent of the provides th The Loan bill passed the House this aftern again if necessary. A new section of the bill provides that he shall make a report of his operations under the that he shall make a report of his operations under the bill at the commencement of next session. Mr. Lynch, of Maine, made a proposition, which found a few sup-porters in the course of debate, to the effect that no Treasury notes should be retired until all out-standing interest bearing notes are funded. This was easily frowned down. Considerable fillbustering ensued, the House being in Committee of the Whole, with Rollins, of New Hampebire, in the chair. Rollins is as weak in the rôte of presiding officer as he is upon financial questions, more especially upon raising money for New Hampshire election purposes, and he was con tinually in het water, covering his confusion by poundin vigorously upon the Speaker's green baize with the Speaker's lvory gavel. By keeping his eye steadily upon Thad Stevens, and persistently ignoring Long John Went-worth's loud and sharp bursts of indignation, he manthe report of the committee's doings. Thad made one or two ineffectual efforts to adjourn the House; but Moramendments a at quarter past five, and discomfited the THE NEW JERSEY SENATORIAL CONTEST—MENATOR STOCKTON DECLARED ENTITLED TO THE SEAT.

The partisan operations of to-day developed themselves in all the monstresity which fartisan intrigue and char-latanism is capable of assuming. The question was a con-tinuation, at the expiration of the morning hour, of the case of Hon. John P. Stockton, of New Jersey. Yester-day Morsey. day Mosers, Chark and Pessenden spoke in opposition to his admission, while Mr. Stockton himself and Reverdy Johnson spoke in support of the validity of the Senator's election under the rules of the joint messing of the New Jersey Levislation. Johnson spoke in support of the validity of the Senator's election under the rules of the joint messing of the New Jersey Legislature. The contest closed by the pesspitete annihilation of the artful logic of the opposition. To day the ball was opened by Senator Howe, who proceeded to compliment his radical friends on their ability, and said that he had not examined the subject; which was quite apparent. Mr. Stockton now put in a word, which Mr. Howe failed to reply to whereupon Mr. Passenden coming to the rescue. Mr. put in a word, which Mr. Howe failed to reply to; whereupon Mr. Fessenden coming to the rescue, Mr. Stockton and himself held a side conversation, which Mr. Howe, who had the floor, listened to in silence. Fascander got the worst of this little diversion, and Howe, after speaking for a few minutes, took his seat. Senator Hendricks' argument in favor of Mr. Stockton's admission was a clear, comprehensive and able view of the question, bringing to light the fallacy of the reasoning by which the radicals endeavored to deprive the Senator of his seat. After a little skirmiah as to who should dost, Mr. Trumbull took the floor in vindication of the committee. The effect of this gentleman's remarks was sensible. The endicals at this point became exceedingly discourteous, Mr. Chast apringing to his fees, and declaring that the election was illegal, by still admitting the power of the joint meeting to decide that a plurality could elect. Mr. Cowan argued from the other side, enlarging on Mr. Hendricks' points, frumbull again commenced speaking, whereupon samere became irrepressible, and Yates let the cat out of the bag by saying he would, on certain considerations, receive the Senator "without regard to party principes." Summer now took a turn question the party principes." of the bag by saying he would, on certain considerations, receive the Senator "without regard to party principles." Sunater now took a turn, quoting Pope Benedict, the College of Cardinals, and other historic instances not at all connected with the subject. The contest by this time was reduced to close quarters. Both sides commenced beating to quarters and forming for a vote. After McDougail gare a few finishing blows the roll was called and the amendment failed by one vote. The vote on the aduption of the report of the committee now came up. lefore announcing the result Mr. Stockton addressed the Chair, stating that he had a telegram in which his colleague had paired off with Mr. Morrill. Mr. Stockton said "Mr. President, Mr. Morrill has voted. I request that my name be called." "Mr. Stockton." exclaimed the Clark. "Aye," replied Mr. Stockton. The result was the passage of the report of the committee by one vote, Mr. Stockton becoming a Senator by twenty-two votes in the allimative and twenty-one in the negative. It is a singular fact that Mr. twenty-one in the negative. It is a singular fact that Mr. Morrill did not vote on the amendment, but, on discovering that it required one vote to make a tie on accepting the report of the committee, he did vote when he was picked up so unexpectedly by Mr. Stockton. The Senator responsed to an explanation, but the house of the committee of the proceeded to an explanation, but the least we say on this subject the better. The day has been a stormy one. The radicals developed their full strength, but conservation

The vote is considered by the friends of the Presider an indication of the strength the administration may rely upon in the Senate in case of a contest. The vote shows an actual conservative or anti-radical majority of one, all the Senators either voting or being paired off.

The following extracts from a letter addressed to an assessor of internal revenue by the Deputy Commissioner are of interest to assessors and ratiroad companies:—
Section one hundred and twenty-two imposes a tax of five per cent on all dividends and profits of such companies carried to the account of any fund or used for construction. As it was found to be impracticable for ratiroad companies to state their net gains as often as a dividend was declared, this office has not insisted upon its being done, but requires such statement to be made once a year, this being as often as the accounts of the company are settled. One return during the year on form No. 65 should show the not gains and profits over dividends declared for the online year, and the tax should be paid on such grofits. It will be observed that the amount of profits used for construction is subject to the tax of five percent, the same as if it were added to surplus or contingent funds.

The report of the Committee on Reconstruction, giv-ing the testimony of General Lee and others about the condition of Virginia, is still delayed by the absence of Senator Howe, who is especially connected with the branch of the investigation.

Much astonishment has been created here by the re-ception of a telegram from Chicago stating that dements, controverting the position of the Secretary of the Treasury. So far from this being true, General Spinner's effort was in the opposite direction and in answer to Mr. Clarke. The Secretary of the Treasury has received the following letter:—
